

MEXICANS RAID TEXAS TOWN; KILL AMERICANS

the eight troopers were quartered before the single sentinel could raise an alarm.

The attackers rushed madly on the shack, shouting: "Viva Villa!" and "Viva Carranza!"

They were met by a sturdy defense from the half-asleep Americans, however, and failed in their evident attempt to make a quick capture of the patrol guard.

From 11 o'clock that night until after 2 o'clock in the morning Sergeant Smith fought the Mexicans from the shelter of the patrol house. In that time three of his men, Privates Cohen, Coloe and Rogers, had been killed, and he and all the rest were wounded. Then the shack caught fire.

FORCED TO RETREAT.
It was impossible to stay any longer. Sergeant Smith ordered a retreat. Two of his men were so badly wounded it was necessary to carry them.

Smith and the other three men not only succeeded in removing the badly wounded; they took out the bodies of the three dead men and carried them to a place of safety.

There was a motor truck attached to the camp. The dead and dangerously wounded men were loaded into it and sent north toward Marathon, a station on the Southern Pacific railroad, eighty-five miles off, in the hope that medical aid might be secured for the wounded.

One man left with the truck. This left Smith and two others to engage the battle. They retreated to the low hills and fought from behind rocks and mounds of gravel.

While all this was going on ranchmen of the vicinity had heard the shooting and had hurried to the scene. Although few in numbers, they formed an adequate reinforcement. With the badly wounded and the dead disposed of, Sergeant Smith and his men joined in the fighting again and about 4 o'clock, as dawn began, the Mexicans retreated and disappeared.

This was five hours after the fighting began. The bandits rode toward the east until they came to Glenn Springs. They looted a general store and killed the 10-year-old son of O. G. Compton. Then they proceeded to Boquillas, a few miles north of the Rio Grande, where they seized supplies and forage, and rode on again. There the bandits were Deemers. Here, according to the reports received in El Paso, they despoiled the general store of John Deemers. Then they crossed back into Mexico, taking with them Deemers and Louis Coy, a man in his employ.

It is believed that Deemers and Coy must have been killed after being taken to the Mexican side of the Rio Grande.

Late today no details of the eighty-five-mile drive of the motor truck carrying the wounded men from Glenn Springs had arrived here, leaving the scene of the battle, however, early on Saturday morning, it reached Marathon Monday. There the news of the raid was sent over a railway telegraph wire to Alpine and Marfa and thence to El Paso.

PRIVATE TYRE MISSING.

Nothing has been heard of Private Roscoe Tyre, who was last seen as he ran from the ambush house where he and his eight companions for three long hours fought against the Mexicans and then fled because the roof of the house was set afire by fire balls. Private Crossen, who was in the fight, thinks that Tyre was wounded and wandered off in the hills, where he died. Others believe that Tyre was carried off by the bandits and probably killed later.

Unconfirmed information says that J. Deemer, the storekeeper at Boquillas, has been found dead on the Mexican side with his throat cut. His clerk, named Compton, is known to have been a captive of the bandits. He is thought to have suffered the fate of Deemer.

There were only a few Americans in Glenn Springs and at Boquillas at the time of the raid and the bandits apparently made no effort to locate them.

WOMEN IN REGION.

Several women are known to be living on the scattered ranches in the Big Bend country, but there is nothing to indicate that they have been molested. The Mexican employees of the Ellis wax factory in Glenn Springs were not molested.

The bodies of the three soldiers will be sent to their homes today. The body of the Compton boy has been taken to Marathon. A truck driver, Champ Woods, yesterday reported missing, is safe.

Army officers have feared some such occurrence as that at Glenn Springs since it became necessary to break up the border guard into squad patrols. It is understood that company commanders in several instances have urged that their commands be held together for protection.

Woman Tells of Escape From Bandits

LAFAYETTE, Tex., May 8.—Mrs. W. K. Ellis and her husband, whose works were destroyed, told of their narrow escapes. Mrs. Ellis was the only woman in Glenn Springs when the bandits swooped down on the little settlement near midnight. In the flickering lights of the burning building she and her husband stole out of the house and fled in safety to the hills, where they wandered around until morning.

Telling her friends in Marathon, where she is resting today, of her experiences, Mrs. Ellis said:

"A fusillade of shots roused my husband and myself. Peering out of the window we saw the forms of men moving in the direction of the soldiers' little camp."

"The flashes of their rifles were like lightning streaks against the darkness and we knew there must be a number of Mexicans attacking the place. Mr. Ellis told me not to strike a match or make any light for fear of attracting the attention of the bandits."

"In the dark we hunted for our clothes and quickly dressed. The bandits were now firing rapidly at the house, where I later learned the soldiers of Troop A made their stand."

"We could hear the shouts of the Mexicans and saw a party of them moving toward our bungalow. We slipped out of the back door, hugging the shadow as we went for fear of being shot, and made our way into the hills."

"There we hid behind boulders and rocks and dawn found us wandering in the mesquite and desert growth three miles from Glenn Springs. Heaven knows how we got so far in the darkness; I don't know."

"I don't know whose ranch it was, but I was given a burro and rode on it four miles to John Rice's ranch. After the raid we returned to our house at Glenn Springs."

"The interior of the house was thrown into disorder and clothes were missing, but, strangely enough, silverware, thrown about, was not stolen."

"My husband has been popular with the Mexicans employed in his wax factory and that is probably the reason why the Mexicans did not burn his home. I am not afraid to go back and hope to do so when there is sufficient military protection."

Raid Inspired Is Belief

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Representations regarding the Mexican raid into the Big Bend country of Texas were made to Provisional President Carranza today by the United States. The state department's message suggested that he exert his utmost power to prevent a recurrence of such an outrage. It was further suggested that a readjustment of the Carranzista forces would be advisable so that scattered bandit bands could not again cross the border. The message assumed that Carranza would do all he could to guard against fresh attacks.

Persons close to the Mexican embassy declared that the raids were directed from the American side of the line to embarrass the Obregon-Scott negotiations. They thought that followers of Jesus Magon might be responsible.

Hope Raid Will Arouse Department

SAN ANTONIO, May 8.—Army officers here are hopeful that the Glenn Springs affair will serve to arouse the department to the pressing need of additional troops for border patrol duty. General Funston asked for more troops at the time he was forced to take 2500 men from the border to strengthen General Pershing's army in Mexico, but the request was not granted. The nine soldiers attacked at Glenn Springs belonged to a regiment, the Fourteenth cavalry, that has been attempting to patrol a stretch of nearly 400 miles of the wildest country along the entire Mexican border. Troops and detachments of the regiment are spread out from Laredo almost to Sierra Blanca. The latter place is only eighty miles from El Paso. Because of the immense territory to be covered it was necessary to divide the regiment into many small detachments.

Deemer Has Family in California

LAFAYETTE, Ind., May 8.—Jesse Deemer, who was reported as having been carried across the border by Mexican bandits, is the father of Ralph B. Deemer, deputy state chemist at the Purdue agricultural experiment station here. No word has been received by the son. Jesse Deemer has a wife and two children, all of whom are said to be in California.

State Ranger Force to Be Increased

AUSTIN, Tex., May 8.—The state ranger force is to be increased by fifty additional men at once, and a call may be issued for 100 additional rangers for service on the border, according to an official statement issued today by Governor Ferguson.

Raid Will Not Cause Break

EL PASO, May 8.—Generals Scott and Obregon planned to meet today to sign their agreement covering future operations of United States troops in Mexico. Unofficial statements from authentic sources said there was little likelihood of a break between Scott and Obregon because of the Glenn Springs outrage. The raid was regarded as an incident, but not as a dominating factor in the situation.

Full Battalion Is in Pursuit

SAN ANTONIO, May 8.—At least one full battalion of United States troops had moved from Marathon in pursuit of the Mexican raiders who penetrated the Big Bend country of Texas, within twenty-four hours after the first reports of the outrage were received. General Funston's headquarters today, however, declined to state the exact number of soldiers in the pursuit.

It is known that the detachment is strong enough to cope with the bandits if they are overtaken. While hundreds of arid miles lie between the outlaws' probable place of refuge and the nearest railroad, General Funston's orders to the troops were to cross the line if necessary and catch the raiders at any cost. Officers believe the Mexicans will be overtaken.

Supervisor Gathering Infirmary Evidence

Evidence to be presented to the grand jury regarding conditions at the county infirmary is being gathered today by Supervisor Fred Egan of Berkeley, who has been subpoenaed to appear before the judicial body tomorrow to tell what he knows about recent charges of mismanagement and abuse of inmates on the part of petty bosses and employees of the institution.

District Attorney Hynes said today that beside Supervisor Egan no other subpoenas have been issued. It will remain for Egan to convince the members of the grand jury that the situation demands further investigation and in that event it is probable that other witnesses will be subpoenaed.

Frost Damage Big in Valley, Is Report

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 8.—From Sunday morning did serious damage to the grape crop in this vicinity, according to information received last night by Charles E. Verden, manager of the California Fruit Distributors. In the American river district the damage ranged from 50 to 85 per cent, and around Corbin up to 90 per cent. West of Lodi, 30 to 50 per cent. of the crop was lost. Around Fresno no damage was reported.

SUPREME COURT RECESS.
WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Supreme Court today took a recess until May 22.

LOUIS HARCOURT SUCCEEDS BIRRELL

LONDON, May 8.—Louis Harcourt, an Irish independent, has been appointed secretary of state for Ireland, succeeding Augustine Birrell, its incumbent.

Sir Robert C. Anderson, governor of Ceylon since 1913, will succeed Sir Matthew Nathan as under-secretary.

An Exchange Telegram dispatch from Dublin announces that Count Plunkett and his wife have been arrested. They are parents of Joseph Plunkett, the Sinn Féin leader, who signed the proclamation of an "Irish Republic," and who was shot in the Tower of London last Thursday. Count Plunkett is curator of the National Museum.

DUBLIN, May 7.—Countess Georgina Markievicz, one of the prominent figures in the Irish republic movement, was sentenced to death after her trial by court-martial, but the sentence has been commuted to penal servitude for life. It was officially announced this afternoon.

It was also announced that Henry O'Hanrahan was also commuted to a life term. Death sentences imposed upon George Plunkett and John Plunkett, brothers of Joseph Plunkett, who was executed last week, have been commuted to ten years' penal servitude.

The death sentence imposed upon Philip Cosgrave, too, has been commuted. He has been given five years' imprisonment. It has been reported that he will get three years' imprisonment.

John MacNeill, president of the Sinn Féin volunteers, who disappeared on the day the Irish disturbances began, has been arrested. MacNeill held a high position in the account-general's office, but resigned to take a professorship in the National University.

Police Baffled by Mrs. Claffey's Death

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—With Thomas Claffey still held by the police and Miss Margaret McCarty under surveillance, detectives were today nearer the solution of the mysterious death of Mrs. Claffey than when the three-week-old murder or suicide was discovered Saturday.

The discovery of a thumb print in a blood spot on a rocking chair in the room where Mrs. Claffey's body was found tended to strengthen the murder theory.

Detectives today will question every neighbor in the vicinity of the West Third street residence, where the body of Mrs. Claffey was found with every door and window looked from the inside.

A trapdoor leading into the cellar opening under the bed where the body was found, the police believe, would have enabled a murderer to escape, after having looked all windows and doors from the inside.

New Mining Decree Slight Modification

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The do facto government's new mining decree contains only slight modifications from the original draft, although representations were made by the state department to have it altered in various ways before it became effective. The department gave out a statement today, saying:

"The department is in receipt of advice from Mexico City stating that the mining law effective May 1 is virtually the same as that recently referred to in reports sent to the department of state. The law as passed in effect contains minor modifications only."

The new law was devised with the object of forcing development of idle properties and make holders of large numbers of claims pay heavier taxes than small operators. American interests operating in Mexico objected, and through Special Agent Rogers at Mexico City the state department urged modification.

Pastor's Nerve Saves Deadly Explosion

BILLINGS, Mont., May 8.—An explosion of a 60,000-gallon oil tank located at Tibaux, a town near the North Dakota line, was averted by the quick wit and nerve of the Rev. Hubert, pastor of the M. E. church, in pushing a burning automobile away from the tank. The pastor was filling the tank of his machine, which took fire in some unknown way, and an explosion followed. Although enveloped in flames, Mr. Hubert, aided by a helper, got the machine away from the tank. He was seriously burned, but will recover.

Urge Wilson to Break German Relations

BOSTON, May 8.—Resolutions urging President Wilson to break off diplomatic relations with Germany were adopted at a meeting yesterday in observance of the first anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania.

About 2500 persons attended the meeting, which was under the auspices of the Citizens' League for America and the allies. James M. Beck, former assistant attorney-general of the United States, and Professor Josiah Royce, of Harvard, were the principal speakers.

Income Decreases Must Be Explained

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Citizens who handle the Government statements showing a decrease in income during the past three years will have to supplement them with itemized explanations, according to J. J. Scott, United States collector of internal revenue here today. All found guilty of having misrepresented their incomes will be prosecuted, he says.

International Spy Ordered Extradited

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The Supreme Court today issued the mandate in the case of Ignatius T. T. Lincoln requiring his return to England by extradition to answer a charge of forgery. It will be taken to New York at once so that Lincoln may be extradited immediately. Lincoln was formerly a member of the British parliament and a confessed spy.

Held to Answer on Check Charge

T. W. Spaulding, arrested in Chicago for the Oakland police on charges of forgery and uttering fictitious checks, was held to answer to the Superior Court by Police Judge George Samuels today. Bail was fixed at $2500. Spaulding is also wanted by the San Francisco police on similar charges.

AN AGREEABLE SURPRISE.
There are many who have no relish for their meals and who must be very careful as to what they eat, that would be agreeably surprised if they knew they could take a few doses of Chamberlain's Tablets. These tablets strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its duties naturally. Hundreds have testified to the great benefit they have derived from the use of these tablets. They only cost a few cents. Sold everywhere. Watch for the name—Chamberlain's Tablets.

Q. Were these orders issued by any one else than Commissioner Jackson?

Q. Is it true that the switching of patrolmen is a very important factor in the enforcement of the law as pertaining to gambling and prostitution?

A. It certainly is.

Police Dig to Solve Mystery

Woman Scares Pair Who Seek Treasure?

While one section of Oakland's police department is today digging up the yard at the rear of the home of Mrs. Albert Carter, a colored woman, at 1267 Seventh street, seeking to learn its buried secret, another section is combing the city for a Mexican and a Hindoo, names and descriptions unknown.

There is mystery as well as work in all this. Mrs. Carter, awakened by a noise in her yard early this morning, looked through the window. A Mexican and a Hindoo were digging, one with a shovel, the other with a pick. She screamed. They ran. The police are now digging up the yard, perspiring and cursing, seeking a knowledge of the lure that caused the men to work at so early an hour.

PRESIDENT WILSON PRAISES BRANDEIS

"I acted upon my public knowledge and personal acquaintance with the man. His name as a lawyer, his ability and his character were so well recognized that he needed no endorsement. I did, however, personally consult many whose judgment I have the utmost confidence in. I am happy to say, and they supported the voluntary recommendation of the attorney-general of the United States."

"EXCEPTIONALLY QUALIFIED."
"Let me say, my dear senator, in summing up, that Mr. Brandeis was nominated because he was and is, in my deliberate judgment, of all the men now at the bar whom it has been my privilege to observe and test, exceptionally qualified."

"I cannot speak too highly of his impartial, orderly and constructive mind, his rare analytical powers, his deep human sympathy, his profound acquaintance with the historical roots of our institutions and his insight into their spirit, the many evidences he has given of being imbued to the very heart with American ideals of justice and equality of opportunity, his knowledge of modern economic conditions and their bearing upon the masses, his genius in getting persons to unite in common and harmonious action and to look with a frank and kindly eye upon other minds, although heretofore they may have been heated antagonists. This friendship of justice and of men will be an ornament to the high court of which we are so justly proud."

"I am glad of the opportunity to pay this tribute of admiration and confidence and I beg your committee to accept the nomination coming from me quickly, with a sense of obligation and responsibility."

"With kindest regards,"

"WOODROW WILSON."

How Can You Know Piano Values?

Q How are you to satisfy yourself as to the real value of the Piano you are about to buy? Can you judge Piano values by outside appearances, determine the permanence and quality of tone, by one hearing? Do you know Piano construction in plate and scale design? Can you pass upon the quality of action, varnish work veneers, and can you trust your own judgment as to durability and dependability?

Q The one sane and safe way to buy a good Piano is to patronize a house of highest commercial standing, state your needs, and benefit by the judgment, the experience and the integrity of that house. You will pay no more, and your after-satisfaction will prove the wisdom of your choice.

Q Selling good Pianos and giving the best values possible for the price has been our particular care for nearly forty years. That you can buy more Piano value for each dollar expended here is our firm belief, and we know that your after-satisfaction, because of quality, service and appreciation, will be greater than you could expect.

Q Some splendid values in used Pianos at very low prices and on very easy payments, are being shown this week.

"But I forgot! I have to go to the store for a loaf of bread for supper. Come on, fellows, with me, will you?"

"Not neither Jimmie, nor Sammie, nor me," said the little Johnnie, so he started off through the woods, and he was alone, when Uncle Wiggily cried:

"Wait a minute, Johnnie, and I'll go with you. I want to go to the store, too, and I have had no adventure at all, it go along and see what happens."

And he did be nice, chattered and chattered, and he took the Johnnie, who did be nice, and he took the Sammie alone. So, putting his marbles in a bag in which he carried them, he ran along and he was really happy.

They had not gone very far, when, all of a sudden, there came a strong puff of wind, and, before Uncle Wiggily could hold his hat, it was blown off his head, and he was alone. "I mean his hat was not his head,"

THUGS CAUSE RIOT IN PICNIC PARK

Hoodlums, Supposed Members of "Wixson Gang," Ter-rorize Women; Jailed.

Seven youths and young men, supposedly members of the "Wixson gang" of North Oakland, are under arrest in the county jail at Martinez, and the Oakland police are seeking a score of others of the same band as the result of a riot in Redwood canyon yesterday in which several members of a picnic party were injured by hoodlums who attacked the pic-nickers.

Two peace officers were badly beaten and scores of women and children were harassed by the gang of roughs, who took possession of the picnic grounds
after a pitched battle. The local police say that this is not the first time that similar occurrences have taken place, and the chief has gone out that the hood-lum gangs responsible are to be broken up.

More than 500 members of the Es-chscholtz Club of San Francisco, most of them women and children, arrived at the picnic grounds in Redwood canyon, near Pinetown, shortly before noon. Before they had established themselves for the afternoon an auto truck-load of hoodlums arrived, rushed by the gate keepers and attempted to take possession of the grounds. There were more than fifty in the party.

Cobert Gardner, a deputy sheriff of the Seventeenth street, Oakland, and C.
H. Browner, a more patrolman from San Francisco, sought to clear them. A riot followed and the two officers were badly beaten and forced to "apologize." Women fainted and children ran screaming from the place, panic-stricken. The hoodlum party then retired to the Redwood Inn, a saloon nearby, announcing their intention to return shortly and "clean the park out."

In the meantime long-distance telephone calls to Martinez and Oakland brought aid. Sheriff Yessie and posse rushed to the scene in automobiles and scattered the band, first arresting seven members. Captain Lynch of the Oakland department detailed a band of men to guard the roads leading into Contra Costa county. Those under arrest gave the names of William Rose, Frank Thomas, Thomas Cator, John Smith, Martin Lafonta, Al Garbarino and Tony Melio. All live in Oakland.

The local police declare that drastic action will be taken to stop a repetition of yesterday's rioting. This is but one of a number of riots which Oakland rufians have caused among picnickers in Redwood canyon, the police declare, and wholesale arrests are threatened.

covering a period of many years.

High Sub-chief Ranger Joseph W.
Reay of this city becomes the logical successor to High Chief Ranger Lunt and this has caused a wide interest
among the Alameda county courts.

Strong delegations will attend the convention from Hawaii and a large delegation is expected from San Jose.

The local courts have planned festivals and outings for convention week which will include theater parties, pleasure drives, banquets and other forms of entertainment for the entire convention period. The first of these will be a grand reception for delegates at the convention headquarters in Key Route inn this evening. New ritualistic work with an object to the uniformity of initiatory forms throughout, the several high court jurisdictions will receive final action before the close of the present convention. Another matter of wide interest in connection with the high court will be the funeral fund. This feature, although adopted less than four years ago,
has distributed much in funeral benefits.

The sight-seeing trip will include a visit to Berkeley and the University grounds.

Stanford President to Address League

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, the new president of Stanford University, will be the principal speaker at the quarterly dinner and meeting of the Men's League of the First Congregational Church tomorrow evening. This will be Dr. Wilbur's first public address in Oakland since his election to the presidency of the University at Palo Alto, and he has chosen for his subject "The University and Social Service." Though this is Dr. Wilbur's first appearance in Oakland as president of the University he has achieved an reputation as Dean of the Medical College of that institution and, coupled with the fact that he chose his own subject, should give him a mastery of the question.

W. T. Satterwhite, president of the Men's League, will preside. An effort will be made to revive the interest of the older members and stimulate the interest of the younger. There will be a few moments devoted to the Yuletide songs of the church in which the younger
"Yuletide" will be welcomed by some of the older ones.

The First Congregational Church will celebrate the second anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. Francis J. Van Horn on May 14th. Dr. Van Horn will deliver his anniversary sermon upon the date and will then leave for Worcester, Mass., where he will assist in the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the First Church of that city where he was formerly pastor. During his absence
the pulpit will be filled by Dr. Donat, the new assistant pastor. Dr. Donat arrived in Oakland during the week and was introduced to the congregation at the morning service yesterday. There will be a reception to Dr. and Mrs. Donat at the church on Wednesday evening of this week.

Long Distance Trials Again Successful

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 8.—Long distance telephone communication has been established again between the Point Loma Naval Radio station and Washington, Commander Walter Winchell, port commander, conversing with Navy Department officials. This was the second demonstration here in two days of the use of the telephone in the national preparedness test of the country's system of wires.

Iowa Issues Call for Farm Hands

DES MOINES, Ia., May 8.—Iowa needs
farm hands. John C. Nietzel, chief clerk of the state employment agency says so.
The rush of spring work is upon the farmers. Farm hands can get from $25 to $35 a month with board, room and washing. Married couples are offered $45 to $50 with separate furnished houses, in some cases.
The state board of parole in one week
recently issued 25 paroles to Iowa convicts, most of whom had jobs awaiting them on farms.

RESPECT TO DEAD SHOWN BY NATIVES

Daughters and Sons of Golden West in Memorial Service.

More than two thousand members of the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West gathered yesterday in St. George's hall to pay tribute to the memories of members who have gone before them into the Great Beyond.
The impressive services of the lodge included a eulogy by W. H. L. Hynes, district attorney and prominent member of the order, and a special musical service, as is the custom of the order. The big hall at Twenty-fifth and Grove streets was packed to the doors.

District Attorney Hynes in his address dwelt on the beauty of remembering those who have passed before.
"All of us," he declared, "have someone we remember who has passed from our circle. We all, at this time, remember someone with tears. But is it not beautiful that we may remember these, our departed sisters, with the feeling that they now live in a happier lot than ours; that they have gone to a happiness in which someday we ourselves will join them? Through these our sisters may have passed from this earth, yet their finger still lives with us, and are present today in our memories."

The speaker mentioned a number of those whom he knew who had died in the ranks of the order in the past year. Frederick Sullivan, Miss Jean McGowan and Mrs. E. H. Ruffels rendered music for the occasion.

The affair was a joint one, under the auspices of the various parlors of the order in the county.

The committee in charge included
the following: Miss Minnie Jackson, Mrs. Elizabeth Bruns, Mrs. Nellie
De Plois, Mrs. Addie Mosher, Mrs. J.
J. Dignan, Mrs. J. Bail, Miss Vergie
Wilson, Mrs. Gertrude Townsend.

"Drug Ring" Suspects Arrested in Stockton

STOCKTON, Cal., May 8.—In the arrest of two men giving the names of Ernest Horton and Charles Goldberg, the police believe they have brought to justice two agents of a well organized drug ring. The two men were arrested at the residence of the General California Traction Company after they had purchased tickets for Sacramento and the police confiscated two suit cases carried by the men. In these they found tins of morphine and opium said to be valued at more than $500. The men said they had come from San Francisco and were on their way to Sacramento. Horton and Goldberg refused to say anything about the drugs.

Japanese Deserters Drowned in Escape

HONOLULU, T. H., May 8.—Three firemen were drowned here while attempting to desert from the Japanese steamer Aikoku Maru by swimming ashore. The three Japanese, with life-preservers on jumped overboard while the vessel was a mile and half from land.
The Aikoku Maru, which was bound from San Francisco for Yokohama, put in here to replenish her bunkers, her coal supply having been exhausted fighting a heavy southwest gale encountered March 24. The steamer ran into a north-wester off this port and was compelled to lie for three days under the lee of the island of Maui.

DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Not a Trace of Gray Hair
Shows After Applying Q-Ban;
No Dye or Sticky Mess; Harmless.

Do this: Apply like a shampoo
Q-Ban Hair Color Restorer to hair and scalp, and dry hair in sunlight.
A few applications like this turn all your gray, faded, dry or gray-streaked
hair to an even, beautiful dark shade.
Q-Ban also makes scalp and entire head of hair healthy, so hair is left soft, fluffy, lustrous, wavy, thick, charming and fascinating, without even a trace of gray hair showing,

News in Small Doses

LOS ANGELES, May 8.—Francisco Villa was captured in a cave in the San Martin ranch,
Ventura county, by Sheriff
Clint of Los Angeles, court-martialled and sentenced to remain from one hour's refreshments. President Wilson and the United States army were not particularly interested because it was Villa's birthday and the affair was a celebration. The cave of Jose Vasquez, one of the famous bandits of two decades ago, was used as Villa's lair, and Antonio Her-era, ranch hand, who closely resembles Villa, impersonated the hunted outlaw.

SAVED BY MIRACLE.
SAN BERNARDINO, May 8.—Carried
down the mountain side on a wild plunge
over Laurel Point on the "switchbacks," Jacob Lerch and his son, Earl Lerch of Ontario, were unable to leap from the somersaulting automobile and actually escaped alive to see the undamaged machine dragged back to the road and start again on its own power.

BOOST FREIGHT RATES.
TOKYO, May 8 (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—In view of the increase of exports and growing scarcity of cargo space the government has authorized the Japanese steamship companies to increase freight rates. The increase affects the three great Japanese shipping concerns which run a service to the United States and Canada. The increase of rates to America is from 15 to 20 per cent when the goods are consigned to ports and 20 per cent when destined for interior points.

a century and a half of relative unpopu-

Loves to Ring Alarm; Is Nabbed by Police

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Patrolman A. J. McCarthy was all ready to be a hero at 2:30 this morning when he saw a man excitedly break the glass on a fire box and turn in an alarm. He had visions of women and children in danger of flaming flames and narrow escapes from death. He ran towards the box to learn the source of danger and was surprised to see the sounder of the alarm dashing away in the opposite direction.
He pursued and caught the man after a three-block chase. He gave the name of Martin Costello and said he was a teamster.

"I just love to see the engines rattle by and hear the noise of the fire bells," was his explanation. He was charged with turning in a false alarm. Firemen say he has done the same thing before.

Fire caused by a lighted cigarette dropped on the roof of a warehouse owned by Mrs. P. Verata at 532 Fourth street last night did damage estimated at $1000
to the La Roy Hotel at Fifth and Washington streets, the property of Jacob Pantosky. The flames spread to the hotel and were gotten under control only after a hard fight by the firemen.

Add cream of tartar and cut into the yolk mixture. Heat and brush with crisco. The omelet pan and pour in the mixture. Place on range where it will

SEVEN INJURED IN AUTO WRECKS

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Three persons were painfully hurt last night when an automobile driven by Mrs. C. V. Roy, 2233 Sutter street, crashed into a motor on the State highway near San Mateo,
in which Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ballinger, 2514 Pine street, were riding with a party of friends.

Miss Rose Stack, sister of Edward Stack, chief deputy auditor of San Mateo county, was one of the occupants of the car in which Ballinger was riding with his wife. She was cut about the head and sustained other injuries.

Ballinger's ten-year-old son was picked from the wreckage with scratches about his arms and body.
T. M. Paulson, 3342 Seventeenth street, was severely injured at Geary and Kearny streets when an in-bound Geary street car struck the rear wheel of a Stiney driven by A. Sle, 3342 Seventeenth street, last night.

The automobile was turned completely over, throwing the five occupants to the street. The machine was wrecked.
Paulson, the only one hurt, was treated at the Harbor Emergency hospital for severe lacerations and bruises.
Policeman William Bennett of Central Station, arrested Harry Ruby, the motor-man, and charged him with battery.

Two women and a thirteen-year-old girl were injured in an automobile accident at the ocean beach at 2 o'clock yesterday morning when the machine was wrecked by striking a bank of sand
on the Great Highway, opposite India street.

mobile of Thomas Foley, 3511 Eighteenth street, early yesterday morning at Geary and Buchanan streets. No one was injured, although seven passengers were in Foley's school car, which had apparently left the road and plunged down a gulf.
The machine was badly damaged and had been abandoned. According to the license number, it is the property of Joseph Keith of 2222 Sutter street, San Francisco. The Contra Costa county hospitals have no record of any victims from the accident.

CUP GIVEN FOR MOTOR EXHIBIT

Haynes Company Wins Trophy at Power Show; Speech Is Made.

Declaring that the Motor Power Show compared favorably with national exhibits and speaking in terms complimentary to the exhibitors and management of the recently closed exposition, William Klingler of the London and Lancashire Insurance Company, Ltd., presented for the company the silver cup awarded for the most popular exhibit. The Haynes Motor Vehicle Company was the winner.

Judges of exhibits were William H. Waite, T. W. Harris, William H. Donahue, William S. Wells, F. B. Ogden and Everett J. Brown.

In making the award, Klingler said:

"Pursuant to the instructions and request of yourself, representing the London and Lancashire Insurance Company, Ltd., transmitted through the management, we visited the show in a body. We proceeded carefully to examine all of the exhibits and after a minute examination and inspection of the entire show decided upon four displays for final consideration. We considered the displays from the points of setting, detail of arrangement, embellishments, mechanical arrangement of exhibits, educational features and artistic display. While on some of these points certain these displays seemed the most prominent and attractive, we finally arrived at a unanimous conclusion by a consideration of the above points in connection with the general ensemble of the exhibit. By the process of elimination after a re-examination and reinspection of the final four exhibits from which to make a choice we arrived at the following unanimous conclusion:

"The exhibit of the Haynes Motor Vehicle Company awarded first choice; display of the Buick Company a close second, and strong competitor for the first place. The display of the Kissel Kar (and allied cars) third place. The display of the Stutz car, fourth place.

"We congratulate the management of the show and yourselves and all others who have aided in making it such a success. As owners and drivers of automobiles we appreciate the value of such a display."

Aviator Finds Can't Come Down

Forced to Daring Deed to Descend

LONG BEACH, May 8.—Cool-headed calculation and a steady nerve saved the life of J. W. Boyd, trick aviator of this city, when on the initial flight of the young birdman Sunday morning in a new loop-the-loop machine, he discovered at an altitude of more than 2000 feet that his outfit was "tail heavy," and would not come earthward under ordinary guidance. Throwing his control to a point which would generally have sent the outfit in a vertical drive, his machine continued to climb. Realizing his perilous position after having tried all other means to bring the machine down to the ground, Boyd coolly stepped from his seat, posting himself on a twelve-inch one-bar in front of the control wheel, and opened his engine wide. Running at a rate of more than seventy miles an hour, the daring birdman kept his position and the foremost out-post of the aeroplane, guiding it in a long spiral maneuver down to the beach front. Even with the machine weighted down in front, the descent was slow.

Boyd's outfit, which was especially built for trick and exhibition flying, is equipped with a sixty horsepower, eight-cylinder motor, which formerly furnished the power plant for Frank Stiles' outfit. Stiles, it will be remembered, was killed while performing for a war feature put out by a motion picture company at San Fernando.

Boyd stated yesterday upon his descent that he had not noticed the unbalanced condition of his machine until he had risen to the great height and intended to make light of the situation, local aviators who witnessed the performance commented upon it as one of the most daring exploits in aviation.

"Thoughts of vacation are simply eating up nearly every worn-out worker and cafe 'trouder' and billiard expert—and even every devotee of the movies—just now! It's very devastating!

Whether 'sport' clothes forced the season, or whether everyone has to take a rest from thinking about the war, elections, feminism, the Mexican polly and the Belgian market, the fact remains that secretly the main interest of every one in town is in bathing suits, straw hats, fishing rods and summer resorts.

The dressmaker is coming into her weeks of glory and the shops are holding sales of fabrics—striped lawns and striped awning, striped blouses and striped volles. Everything is striped and as insane as possible. Whether you are a thousand more or like Methusalem, or a newborn infant, you must achieve stripes or perish.

"Let any person put on these stripes," remarked a buyer, "and if he's dead he'll wake up."

But this is not a story of Lazarus. Below the bargain related here is the story of a young man who, in the TRIBUNE and prepare for one of those outings by the wild sea waves where you blister your nose—

And forget your woes while applying your pet brand of cold cream!

Unless you're one of those abandoned persons who rest each summer by tramping twenty miles a day, you'll admit that it helps any vacation to start with such luggage as even the German army might envy.

In fact, the latest wardrobe trunks are fascinating enough to force you on a vacation just so that you can have an excuse for buying one. They glitter like lunasins, and brass studs them all over the outside, while bright blue or even ecruish creases line them within. The final improvement consists of a top that can be moved up and down so that when the trunk stands on end in a traveler's room, she doesn't have to stoop, unless it be deliberately with the intention of reducing.

The dangle in such "boxes," shown by Capwells, is covered with a specially handwoven fibre of navy blue, and has within a dozen hangers of the smoothest veneer, all held in place by a thing called a "following board," that is an improvement on the "hanger" in only a single suit inside it can't shake around. The entire wardrobe of one destitute traveler did when it was packed into a trunk.

On the other side facing the hangers were five drawers, beginning at the top with tiny compartments and increasing in size to two above the combined into one or two drawers. Blue shoe pockets lined the space below the hangers. Steamer trunks on exactly the same plan are equally desirable.

Another alluring piece of luggage was designed for a bride, a trunk of shining surface, and rounded ends with, inside, linings of mauve and blue and white cretonne. They are especially valuable to present bride-sets, or for elopements.

Hoop-skirts are timid, conservative things by comparison with the lampshades of crinoline that would be quaint fair ones may adjust around their waists so that their skirts sail out at the hip line at an angle of forty-five degrees. These may be bought at any large department store, however.

Ice skating shoes are the latest necessity of the wardrobe. Those at Eschential's resemble much English boots of Russia, as they are low of heel and not high above the ankle. But the soles are of ivory and right across the vamp where a skate strap presses on the foot there is a saddle strap of perforated leather. These boots have not too much of the heel, the heel is about three-quarters of an inch high, are equally smart for walking.

Riding boots are now in demand also and at this shop they may be had in dark Russia leather or in black, for even the fad for scoping alone in safe ice fields has not quite downed the popularity of the horse.

What is called a "sewing week" is going on at Kahne. This means special prices on all manner of fabrics which one buys and, armed with French patterns, approaches a genius of the needle, sometimes one's self, don't you know?

It's almost too much to speak of stripes, but there are new combinations of colors on various materials, such as wide bands of orange printed on cotton cloth next to many narrow lines of black and white, and heavy cotton rajans striped with brilliant greens. Pongee is greatly favored at present when modified with color, and especially when that color takes the form of a blue or rose stripe. New crepe de chimes with blazer and crease stripes running through are also ready to be made into blouses and even the new taffetas seem to have little other idea than of broad bands crossing through.

But since vacation approaches, the prospective traveler may be even more interested in attractive wash cloths of white, bordered with pink or blue or yellow or lavender (to match your lingerie) and then crocheted all around the outside. These fit well inside of going-away cases—as super wash clothes!

No matter how strong your convictions against water as a drink, you will admit that the presence of a water pitcher in your mansion is one of those strange necessities forced upon mankind by civilization. If you use a water bottle for water, you must have something or other for lemonade. Therefore regard a particular kind of a water pitcher surrounded by six glasses and sold by Jackson's Furniture Store at a special sum with attention.

You must have these things on your porch table this summer, as soon as the ice-man comes.

Whether it's a pair of wooden drumsicks or an accordion that you require, or a ukulele or a flute or an imposing harp whereon to learn to be one of the west's few harpists, all of these may be had for a while longer at Kohler & Chase's at less than it will trouble your purse for later on.

Since summer is coming it's necessary to invest in some kind of a musical instrument with which to keep people in the next apartment have awake all night!

White is favored for many of Taft & Penney's little "beach" frocks, white taffeta or white Georgette crepe especially. One of white Georgette crepe, for instance, flared out into a skirt banded four times over with broad widths of taffeta, while around the neck, above a little taffeta collar, a red ribbon half held it.

Another frock, more elaborate, on its novelty to a hand of Georgette crepe, for instance, flared out into a skirt banded four times over with broad widths of taffeta, while around the neck, above a little taffeta collar, a red ribbon half held it.

Graduation and confirmation dresses of a white net are other—but more usual—events of the season.

Sport stripes printed on white Japanese crepes make one of the most practical and attractive materials of the spring for school and vacation frocks, since these crepes launder so much more easily than anything else.

"Women rush at them as if they had been waiting all their lives," remarked a merchant who is still astonished at the "sport" craze.

At Marymont & Upright's are shown these crepes with one-inch stripes of white sandwiched between two shades of rose or two shades of blue, while another pattern had white between yellow and blue stripes. On a new, heavy wash poplin that is the latest to join the ranks of sport fabrics, the colors would blind a timid person, for they look quite like flags. Imagine two-inch bands of royal blue or of violent apple green running through white. Others less intense; exhibited rose, gray, gray grounds. Ready-made kimono of the sport crepes in another department show that stripes have invaded the boudoir as well!

If the high cost of wearing silk blouses troubles your soul it may console you to discover that delightful cotton ones may be purchased for a trifle at the Greater Oakland. Many quilts of new design, carefully made, and with ample new white collars of the kind that rumple but little are to be had there in a variety of styles and colors. Among the crepe blouses are many of odd shades that you usually can't find in this world when your mind is set on them, such as sulphur and mustard and intense purple or lavender. Among the more elaborate blouses was a creation of flesh-toned Georgette crepe all dotted down the front with tiny gold buttons and embroidered between the shoulders on four odd little triangular berthas that took the place of frills.

There is a novel patented hat lining—oh, amateur milliners—that is most expertly fashioned and that may be tacked into a chapman with a few simple stitches. The hat crown may be any reasonable size worn by the human head, and the lining price is little more than that of any of the traditional kind.

Forming a vest and double full around the collar, blue and brown plaid silk relieved the sobriety of a picturesque African brown silk costume at the Eastern Outfitting Company. The coat, following the "pompom" style, had sleeves ending in silk ruffles over the hands, and decorated at the back with tiny silver buckles holding down a section of the plaid. Both the color scheme and mode gave this interest.

No embroiderer of lingerie should omit passing by Whitthorne & Swan's this week. It sounds like a fairy tale, but there happen to be such embroiderers' trifles as gold braid in packages of ten skeins for little more than what you usually pay for one. Already made-up envelope chemises for what is spent on a "Concey Island Sunday," and stamped handbags for the price of a stick of gum, and pillow edging braids at the same amount a yard are other boons for the thrifty needle persons.

Among the special quantity of stamped garments and articles are children's rompers of blue and pink chambray already stitched up, linen table squares, bath towels and "stork" bags for the benefit of unappreciative infants of tender age. Braids of all descriptions are to be discovered by the early shopper, also.

Turquoise ribbon velvet enlivened a navy blue silk tailor suit at Manheim and Mazor's by running in one broad and two narrow rows around the sides of the flaring pelium—but not around the back. A square collar that dropped down in points back of the shoulders also was bordered with rows of the bright ribbon and both around the cuffs and neck narrow touches of the velvet. Two huge buttons of interesting Oriental design finished the back of the jacket.

When it behooves the masculine person stirred by the advent of Spring to purchase himself a sportive cap he may find at Money-Back Smiths creations all squared off in loud plaids; or he may find quite mild and harmless caps of small, round checks. Some of them are even treated on the seams while others are of the flattest silk available. There are long visored jockey caps and motor caps of a cloth nearly related to yellow brown army cloth—but not quite.

But, too, there are still the helmets for the mountain hunter of wild California lions.

Once in a while a chinchilla coat is well cut. One of this kind at Cosgrave's had blue stars marking it off in four-inch squares that gave it an odd look of novelty. Silk braid of white bound the edges into a severe simplicity and round ivory buttons like marbles fastened up the front.

It's called a fireless cooking gas range, but it appears that a certain amount of gas flame is necessary to start the latest of weird stoves that is being shown by Breuners' right in the window. But as this invention is said to save a chaf three out of every five cents spent for gas—also much time spent by slaves of the fire in the kitchen—all kinds of housewives will be interested.

One of these combined fireless cookers and gas ranges is a very odd affair, like a table—with an oven perched up on one end and a special place for the "cooker" arranged at the back of a gas shelf on the other side. Underneath is a wide shelf where all manner of things may be piled. With such a range as this and a little gas, the food artist may make extraordinary dishes in the heart of Africa or Arizona without scorching to death.

Literal Bars Face Spooners No More May Canoes Glide Under Bridge

John Gutleben, manager of the municipal boat house, has established a censorship on the billings and cooing on the waters of Lake Merritt. Hereafter many of the little amusements of loving couples are to be deleted by censor, so far as the outdoor evening sports of the pretty lake are concerned.

For Gutleben, noticing that moon and wave have led astute billing ones to permit their canoes to drift beneath the bridge which supports the Twelfth-street dam, has had bars placed across the entrance. No longer may the lover-freighted bark seek the secluded nooks beneath the bridge and there remain wedged in the piling while time and tide did what they pleased or what nature decreed for them.

Lake Merritt's shadowed waters after sundown have a considerable local reputation as an Alkion of spooners. Little lights are attracted to the sterns of canoes that bob across the waters in the dark, but heretofore the astute ones have paid died their vessels beneath the bridge, out of eye and ear-shot of inquisitive ones. Now all spooning must be done in the open.

MR. CANNON'S VINDICATION.

Representative Joseph G. Cannon of Illinois, having reached the age of eighty years, and having rounded out his fortieth year of service in Congress, members of Congress of all political divisions joined Saturday in paying him compliment and testifying before the country of the high regard in which Mr. Cannon is held. Five or six years ago this would not have transpired. Yet Mr. Cannon in the meantime has done nothing new to attract the confidence or draw the admiration of his colleagues.

No more striking example of the passing of a frenzy of false understanding and revulsion of sentiment following has, to our knowledge, been observed in the history of the country's public men. During the eight years Mr. Cannon was speaker of the House he introduced a lot of efficiency and expedition into the proceedings of that body. He subdued a lot of vicious log-rolling and filibustering and required more strict attention to the nation's business than Congress had ever known prior to the so-called Cannon regime.

But the Democratic side, being in the minority for many years, found nothing better to do than to resort to obstructive tactics and personal abuse in devising excuses to take home to their constituencies. They denounced the rules of the House as tyrannical, unworthy of free men and subversive of individual liberty in the House. They told the country that the speaker was an autocrat and a czar; that no bill could receive consideration without first obtaining the consent of the speaker. They declaimed from the floor of the House and from the stump that the speaker was the House and that the members were merely attendants upon him, waiting to hear his will, because under the rules the power of the House and of its members was lodged with the speaker.

The Bryan Democratic convention in Denver in July, 1908, went so far as to insert a plank in its platform, charging that the House of Representatives had ceased to be a deliberative and executive body, but had come under the absolute domination of the speaker, "who has entire control of its deliberations and powers of legislation." Newspapers and magazines took up the cry and "Cannonism" became an opprobrious term, and Speaker Cannon was defeated for reelection to Congress after serving nineteen terms.

When the Democrats came into majority power in 1910 they closely inspected, for the first time, the rules of the House which had been administered by Speaker Cannon. Only responsibility made them do it. They found nothing essentially wrong with them and the revised rules which they adopted embodied no radical changes. They found that the Cannon way was the only way to get business out of Congress. A close study of the rules made them realize that they were the result of over a century of experience, and while the rules themselves are only forty-two in number their interpretation is based on the decisions of a century of illustrious Democratic and Republican leaders. Even that most maligned power of the speaker to prevent a member from talking until he was "recognized" was left carefully undisturbed. A statistician has figured that it would take sixty-six years to give every member a chance to talk on each bill introduced in one session.

Mr. Cannon has gone back to Congress. His district in Illinois realized its mistake in recalling him. The Democrats in Congress, grown to a majority, have realized their mistake, and the country is beginning to find out that "czarism" and "Cannonism" were merely bugbears created by the disappointed. The former opponents of Mr. Cannon have not publicly recanted and apologized; they have not confessed that they bore false witness; that they are ashamed and would like to make amends. But they speak no more of "Cannonism." They observe that Speaker Clark is disposed at times to go beyond the spirit of the rules, which Mr. Cannon did not do. Former Speaker Cannon, the most criticized public man in the United States, has "come back." His is a great vindication.

PEACE STRAWS.

Much as the world needs peace and much as we desire peace to prevail, we can see no justification for interpreting any passage in the recent reply of Germany to the United States in the submarine controversy as giving cause to hope that the end of the great war is near. It would be too much like the drowning man grasping at a straw.

Germany's counter-proposal in the note that the United States should enforce observance of international law upon Great Britain is designed to win some advantage for acceding to our views upon the conduct of submarine warfare. Her reference to a "readiness to make peace on a basis safeguarding Germany's vital interest" was inserted to support that contention. It may be recalled that we found no hope for peace in the statements a few weeks ago of Dr. Von Bethman-Hollweg before the Reichstag regarding Germany's conditions of peace.

It may seem over-pessimistic not to seize upon and foster the slightest suggestion that termination of the conflict is at hand, but conditions of fact must receive higher consideration than hope and theory. There must be another test of the military forces of the belligerents as they are at present lined up. It will be a terrific and heart-breaking test, but it appears inevitable. After that maybe the warring powers will talk peace.

TELEPHONING TO THE NAVY.

Telephonic conversation between the office of the Secretary of the Navy and war vessels under way at sea is an extension of the development of wireless telephony of the greatest potential importance. It has been expected for some time, since the experiments nearly a year ago that demonstrated that wireless messages across the continent—from Washington to Honolulu—and across the Atlantic were entirely practicable.

Perhaps it is too early to expect that wireless telephone communication with shore stations will supplant the wireless telegraph, or will be able to bridge the great distances a battleship may be from the shore base. We do not yet know whether it is possible to install instruments of sufficient power aboard ships to enable communication over long distances. There is also the fact that in actual hostilities it would be desirable to communicate with vessels by code; the telegraph would be more reliable for this purpose.

Atmospheric conditions are also not always favorable to wireless telephony. We recall that at the time the first experiments were conducted, Mr. Theodore N. Vail pointed out that the wireless phone would never supplant the more conventional wire communication. He did not believe it would ever be dependable, owing to the frequency of atmospheric disturbances, and was disposed to view wireless telephony for the present as an artistic and scientific triumph which might or might not turn out to be of high utilitarian value.

Theoretically, of course, it would be a great achievement to establish a system of communication which would keep every ship of our navy in touch with a central directing authority at all times; but in practice we have had occasion to rejoice that naval commanders were isolated from Washington and thus in a position to deal with circumstances as they arose, rather than be subject to the interference of men who know nothing of naval strategy or operation. Such perfect and dependable communication as is possible to conjecture from the wireless telephone would necessitate a reorganization of our naval administration upon an entirely new theory. The civilian secretary would indeed "just as well go back home."

THE TRADE BILL.

The bill drawn up by the Federal Trade Commission permitting the use of common selling agencies abroad by American exporters appears to be another step toward governmental paternalism. It was supposed, from information contained in previous statements, that the bill would merely seek to clear up the doubt in the minds of exporters concerning the power of omission in the Sherman anti-trust law. That was stated as its main purpose. While the Sherman law does not expressly forbid combinations for marketing products abroad, it was feared by some that the implication of that law would be sufficient to prevent such an arrangement.

The Trade Commission's draft bill, which is reported to have the hearty approval of President Wilson, does not stop with this, however. It contains a provision to prevent unfair competition by the exporters. The power to enforce this section is vested in the Trade Commission, and every association or selling agency engaged in export trade shall file with the commission its contract of association, the location of its offices or places of business and full information with regard to its membership. By this manner the government would be in a position absolutely to control the business of selling agencies, which in practice might easily mean all the nation's foreign trade. Such power might not be used to injure the export business, but it is a dangerous power to place in inexperienced government hands. Exporters probably will be suspicious and the proposed bill be empty of any real advantage to trade.

San Francisco finds that forty-five thousand persons who have their business and employment in the city do not live in it. Their homes are in other counties. That city is fortunate indeed which combines attractive business opportunities and inducements for home builders at the same time; it will go far and fast in progress and claim high rank in the family of "great" cities. But, unfortunately, every city does not possess the happy combination.

A new foot disease is said to have been discovered and christened "Dartortitis Obliterans." If it is as bad as corns, bearing such a name, it is an affliction, indeed.

Fish stories are arriving promptly. Here is one about a man falling off a bridge through trying to land a trout 11 inches long. The length of the trout was verified by measurement, for he finally landed it.

Uncle "Joe" Cannon is the most impressive example of the Man Who Has Come Back that the annals afford. There are many who will take great satisfaction in noting the eightieth birthday anniversary of this grim but genial and highly interesting personage.

When Senator Wadsworth of New York was asked if he was going to follow the President, he replied that he could not play leap-frog fast enough. Which might suggest the idea that he is unfortunate in not having been on the Ford ship with Revs. Aked and Jones.

This observation was found in the Napa Journal, and we are trying our best to understand it. "The result of the primaries in California last Tuesday conclusively showed the strength of the non-partisan movement," as outlined by the President in his recent speech at Washington.

The Goldfield Tribune is of the opinion that the man who can make gasoline, or something equally as powerful for a cent a gallon ought not to be unhappy very long. He can make two or three thousand per cent profit and make it right away and right along.

Less majesty is not confined to countries that have kings and kaisers. An attaché of the Congressional library has been discharged for disrespectful remarks regarding the President's policies. There are a whole lot of people in the country, however, who can't be discharged by a federal official.

The news is vouchsafed from San Francisco that the "Democrats are out for Wilson." The saying that the Dutch have captured Holland isn't a parallel exactly, because some of the Democrats went to Baltimore four years ago, and some others elected and pledged them.

The election last Tuesday wasn't so very much, after all, according to the Gusting Standard. Listen: The election Tuesday passed off very quietly, only forty-one votes being cast. There can be no interest in an election where the people have no part in either the candidates or the issues.

KITE TIME IN EUROPE! (APOLOGIES TO BEN FRANKLIN)

THE VALUE OF OUR NATIONAL PARKS

Within the past few years both Switzerland and Canada have invaded this country, not with arms to be sure, nor in any hostile guise, but under a well-considered official campaign in each case nevertheless. Their aim in every instance has been to lure our tourist traffic to their dominions for the beguilement of good American dollars. With what success is apparent from the figures of competent statisticians. Switzerland's total tourist business has been reckoned at $150,000,000 a year, and the Canadian Travel Association has estimated that at least $50,000,000 a year is spent over our northern border by vacationists. Although this money is not wholly American in either case, it cannot be doubted but that this country's contribution has been heavy. And now, in the midst of war, the South African republic is conducting a motion-picture campaign in the United States to advertise its resources, among them its scenery.

Foreign travel is far from being an evidence of a lack of patriotism in our people, as has too frequently been at least insinuated. To see the other fellow's country and to observe his ways might well result in a stimulation of patriotic pride. The real pity of it is that so many Americans know their Europe far better than their own United States. By virtue of Europe's calamity and encouraged by the Pacific coast expositions, last year the tide turned westward, and the vacation travel possibilities of this country were revealed to a host of unsuspecting citizens. One of the most distinguished members of the Massachusetts bar, who then made his first transcontinental pilgrimage, returned, it need not be said, a better American, for there was none better than he before, but a most enthusiastic booster for America as a playground. It is certainly something for a cultured and discriminating man to say that he had never enjoyed more any of his nearly thirty visits to the old world. "Preparedness" then has become a watchword with the interior department to an even greater degree than with those of war and the navy. It is urging upon Congress that it is the duty of the government to help entertain its people at home, that it should at least make the fourteen national parks available to a greater extent than heretofore, and that their attractions and opportunities should be made better known to those who crave new scenes. In voting to report the Kent bill, which aims to provide for the parks a skilful and efficient management such as the national forests have enjoyed for a decade past, the House committee on public lands has exhibited a patriotism unattained by partisanship. If it passes into law, those reserves of as superb scenery as the world knows will have some chance of being not only more fully dedicated to the use and enjoyment of the people, but more adequately protected against possible exploitation for private gain.

In anticipation of a favorable outcome, in a spirit of real preparedness again, the department has already arranged a thoroughly co-operative program with the transportation companies and other agencies concerned in catering to the necessities and comforts of the visitors to the parks, which should tend to better service, both governmental and otherwise, and without increasing at least the financial burden upon either the government or the visitors. It has been said on competent authority that Switzerland has spent as much as a million dollars a year in advertising to the world the attractions she offers to her visitors. At a cost that is but a mere trifling fraction of that sum the interior department is issuing attractive free bulletins of information about the parks. With their wide distribution the number of visitors should be greatly increased over the 300,000 who were last year recorded, and with improved administration, such as the Kent bill makes possible, the popularity of the parks will surely be enhanced, and their continuous success as national playgrounds assured. As a government official lately has said, there is immense advertising value in the mere name "National Park." It is a trade mark of superlative excellence backed by the government's guarantee. It bequeaths the government, therefore, to protect that trade mark, not only by maintaining the existing parks in a manner above reproach, but by rigorously declining to establish as national parks in the future regions that do not measure up to this high standard.—Boston Transcript.

THE JESTER.

Interference With Commerce.
A commercial traveler had been summoned as a witness in a case at court, his employers having sued a delinquent customer, and the lawyer for the defense was cross-examining him.
"You travel for Johnson & Co., do you?" asked the attorney.
"Yes, sir."
"How long have you been doing it?"
"About ten years."
"Then traveling all that time, have you?"
"Well, no, sir," said the witness, making a hasty mental calculation, "not exactly traveling. I have put in about four years of that time waiting at railway stations and junctions for trains.—Case and Comment.

Bullfighters Afraid of Cows.
Most Spanish bullfighters object to fighting cows. The average torero is sincerely afraid of a cow. And he has good reason. The cows of the half-wild breed used for the arena are much quicker in their movements than are the bulls. Their horns are more pointed and more formidable. They do not lower their heads to the ground, shut their eyes and charge like a locomotive upon the rails, but are alert and ready to follow every movement of their persecutors.—Exchange.

Expected Too Much.
Noble aspirations fired her soul. Hitherto she had been a pretty but useless little water color painter, crocheting, piano-pounding sort of girl; now she was a farm worker.

At least, she had been earlier in the day; at the moment there were signs of a strike and she was giving the farmer a piece of her mind.
"No," she said, in firm determination, "I don't mind shearing the pigs, or pruning the watercress, or anything reasonable like that. But at mushrooming I draw the line. Why, my good man," she finished, with a maidenly blush, "I have never climbed a tree in my life."—Answers, London.

SPOKE THE TRUTH.

It would seem that Booth never had "a good company." Indeed, he was constantly accused of surrounding himself with indifferent actors in order to shine by contrast. I have heard him say that he always employed the best actors he could get, and it is certain that all the well-known actors of his day appeared in his support at different times, but he never had a company that found much favor. My own explanation is that his great gifts dwarfed even exceptional talents.

Every one is familiar with the lament for the good old actors of a better day. Well, we had some of them—the palmy days. One, a most likable chap, whom I shall call Brown, was quite without pose and made no pretense of taking his art too seriously. I believe he had been a bricklayer, and so he was cast for all the kings. He played the King of France in "Leer," and so always left the theater early. He once said to me, "Ed, how does the damned old play end, anyway?" Brown also played King Louis in "Rebellen." Perhaps he was cast for these royal personages because he walked and talked in a most uncommon way. No one could accuse him of "croaking" the pregnant hinges of the knee" for any purpose whatsoever. He did not walk; he stalked. One night in Salt Lake City we had a drunken man in the gallery who was inclined to be both talkative and critical. You may remember the scene where the King turns from Julia and says, "Speak to her, Burdett, I am not married." Our inebricated critic leaned well forward, and in a voice audible to every one in the theater murmured: "Marble? No, darn you, you're wood!" Edwin Milton Royle in Harper's Magazine.

TRUTH'S AVENUE.

O city! mad with lust and din,
Where sad and joyful millions dwell,
Bound by the glitter and the sin,
Held fast by some peculiar spell
Of light, or darkness born in hell—
Where seekers after truth are few
Who to the world their wisdom tell,
And help to pave truth's avenue—

Where human spicers wait and spin
Their web of lies to lay and sell,
Their brothers, sisters caught therein
Though helpless their poor souls rebel,
And cry in loud, lamenting knell
That speaks in pleading tones to you
These wrongs and evils to expel
And help to pave truth's avenue—

City of promise, oh, begin
Your murky foulness to dispel!
That rectitude, now worn and thin,
May rise a mighty sentinel
With flaming sword these wrongs to quell.
Then shall no, hane or curse pursue
When man and woman, beggar, swell
Shall help to pave truth's avenue.
—ENVOY.
See Justice for her citadel!
Sends out her searchlight strong and true,
That all may see this miracle
And help to pave truth's avenue.

"FAILURES" LACK PRIDE, SAYS ORATOR

Mary Roberts Coolidge Urges Developing Element

Love of Doing Hard Things Is Great Requisite

Social failures, the unemployed, drudges and unstable ones who, for reasons not sufficiently examined, fall below the average, were held up before the Child's Welfare League at a meeting at Hotel Oakland this afternoon as illustrating the want of development of that element in character, pride of performance.

Even crooks and villains have pride in their own work," said Mrs. Mary Roberts Coolidge, whose address was the event of the day. "They believe they are smarter than the rest of us. The love of doing hard things is a quality which girls need to have developed in place of more pride of appearance."

PICKED WEAKNESSES.

Mrs. Coolidge, who was introduced by Mrs. E. F. Rowell, picked out the weaknesses of her divisions of "failures" in her characteristically pointed manner when she said:

"One of the most competent cabinetmakers in the city cannot keep a job because he talks all the time."

"Think of the woman who spends her lives going from the kitchen to the shop, the restaurant, the factory, or even the stage—doing anything that happens to be doing to anything that happens to be doing."

"Think, slave, think! Certainly the principal remedy for any sort of slavery is the ability to think."

"We must readjust our ideas to pay more for drudgery and less for pleasurable occupations."

The address, which was heard by a large gathering of the league members, follows:

"In every society there are certain groups of persons whom we recognize as failures. They are, socially, industrially, morally or intellectually below par, below the standards of our day. When men die of unknown causes the doctors hold a post-mortem—we need now and then to examine our social failures and ask ourselves what has happened to them."

Out of the hundred million people in the United States there are only 1,000 listed among the exceptionally successful in "Who's Who in America"—where, then, are all the rest?

"Any society must be judged not by its distinguished citizens, but by the common average. Just as the lumber cruiser estimates the value of lumber by the average number of feet that it will produce, not by a few trees that the tourists come to see because they are the largest in the world. There have been many Napoleons, perhaps, who have failed for lack of the conjunction of ability, training and opportunity. For instance, analyze the unemployed. A very large proportion of them were once competent, but now they lack strength, judgment, reliability, even initiative."

The most successful might have lacked those qualities, too, if they had been subjected to the unhappy life experiences through which these have passed. One of the most competent cabinetmakers I know cannot keep a job merely because he talks all the time."

THE UNEMPLOYABLE.

Or, examine the unemployed, who seem to have no pride, no appetite for superiority, no standards, no thrift, who only have left the instinct of self-preservation and the dim idea that the world owes them a living."

Russian Exile Buried on Hill

Father Honcharenko Is Now at Rest

Father Anaplius Honcharenko, Russian exile and one of the most picturesque figures in America, who died Friday, was buried this afternoon in a hill-side grave by the side of his wife and child in the Hayward hills. Simple funeral services were held by Rev. W. H. Johnston, of the Hayward Methodist church, and by a Russian priest of San Francisco.

Hayward people, who helped the aged couple and prevented them being ejected from their ranch, and a number of Russian friends of Honcharenko were the mourners.

Honcharenko and his wife had lived for more than thirty years in the Hayward hills, where they sought refuge from persecution of agents of the czar. The Russian priest was driven from Russia for championing the cause of freedom of the serf.

WILL BRING BACK ROMANCE OF WEST

Round-up at San Jose to Give Glimpse of Cattle Life and Industry.

SAN JOSE, May 8.—A broad and realistic glimpse into the days of the cattle industry of the West will be given tonight at the round-up and celebration to take place in this city July 1, 2, 3 and 4, according to the plans being worked out by a contingent of prominent local business men known as the "California Round-Up Association."

The event, the proceeds of which are to go to charity, will be one of such scope and magnificence as will equal if not surpass those famed round-up days' exhibitions that have gained for Cheyenne, Wyo., and Pendleton, Ore., the prominence they boast. For the one object that the association has is to make the coming production as vivid a spectacle of the days of pastoral California and the West as has ever been witnessed.

More than $5000 have been subscribed to date toward carrying out the first work of staging the vast show with hundreds of pledges of varying sums being tendered by men of every craft throughout the county.

PROGRAM FEATURES.

The program is replete with interesting features and scores of unique attractions. Its principal event will be the round-up, and about this is gathered all the thrills and romance that made such border settlements as Dodge City, Kan., and such characters as "Bat" Masterson types that will live forever in the minds of men, as illustrative of a period in this country's history when the pioneer and pathfinder brought the torch of civilization into the dark virgin wilderness of the West.

The days that Emerson Hough, Andy Adams, Owen Winter, Alfred Henry Lewis and others have so graphically told about in their wonderful tales of the ranch and silent places of the great Southwest, will be realistically portrayed by living men, men who have been born to the saddle, and whose whole lives have been lived in and about the corral.

BEST RIDERS TO COME.

At the coming round-up the best riders of this type in the world will assemble in furious competition, with the laurels of championship honors and valuable purses for the winners of all important contests. From present indications it is more than probable that the number of star vaqueros will exceed that of any frontier show, excepting the 1911 Ranch of the 1915 Exposition, ever held in this country.

Besides this main feature of the four-day celebration there are to be countless other events, all of which are to make up a program that is sure to please the lover of Western sports.

SARCASM IS SHAFT USED BY SUFFRAGE

Nellie McClung Stirs Convention With Address

Tells Women Fight for Vote Is Greatest Effort

"With regard to tenacity, my old yellow cat has nothing on prejudice. You can kill it a dozen times and bury it—and the next day it will be back on your doorstep."

"Why should marriage disqualify a woman? Men have been known to vote after they have been dead."

"They say women are too pure to vote—that they are angels. Let us rush them into the public life then—there is a shortage of angels there now!"—Views of Mrs. Nellie McClung.

MINNAPOLIS, May 8.—"Touching up" the arguments against woman suffrage with sharp sarcasm, holding the principal features of the anti-suffrage belief up to laughter, Mrs. Nellie McClung, the woman who put the suffrage amendment on the ballots in Montana, Alberta and Saskatchewan, Canada, made her first of all talks at the Mississippi Valley Suffrage Convention today. She likened prejudice against suffrage to "her old yellow cat," declared that when women got into politics "there will be a clearing out of pigeon holes and forgotten spots on which the dust of ages has fallen."

PREJUDICE EXISTS.

"The prejudice regarding woman suffrage have been blown to pieces many times," she said. "But they still exist. And men continue to do as they like and insist that every true womanly woman should be at home with the nutmeg grater and the oil lamp."

"But the discontent that is causing such great alarm is not criminal; it merely means the striving of ambition, the desire to spread out, to improve and to grow. In the old days when women were toiling from 5 a. m. to 6 p. m. they had no time for thought and no time to get together. For generations now they have been thinking. Factory made articles have given them more time for thought, for social functions, for charity, for visiting the poor, the dying and the sad. They have been wondering about the underlying causes of poverty, sadness and sin."

"Women have dispensed charity for many, many years, but gradually it has dawned upon them that the most of our charity is very ineffectual and only smooths things over, without ever striking the root. May of our charity is like the kindly deed of the benevolent old man who found a dying dog by the wayside, lying in the full glare of a scorching sun. Climbing from his carriage the old man reached for the dog tenderly to place it in the shade, and the dog, who had been lying in the sun's rays, may not quite enjoy it. Then he mounted to his carriage and drove on."

"Women have cleaned up things since time began; and if women get into politics there will be a cleaning out of pigeon holes and forgotten corners on which the dust of years has fallen."

"The argument is often heard that only the married women would vote and that they would vote with their husbands. Very good. The vote of the married man has always been more desirable than the vote of the single man. Why should the vote of a woman? Men have been known to vote for years after they were dead!"

"The argument that women would not vote if enfranchised is weak. Give them a trial. If they don't vote no harm is done. Those who use the argument seem to imply that a vote is a very dangerous thing to leave lying around, that it probably would spoil and blow up."

"Another argument is that women are too sweet and frail to mingle in public life—that they are angels. If this is true we should rush them into public life for just at present there is a shortage of angels there."

"The tender-hearted and chivalrous gentlemen who tell you of their admiration for women say they cannot bear to think of women occupying public positions. Their gentle hearts shrink from the idea of women lawyers and police, or even women preachers. These positions, they say, would rub the bloom off the peach. They cannot bear, they say, to see women leaving the sacred precincts of home. And yet their offices are scrubbed by women who do their work while other people sleep—poor women who leave the sacred precincts of home to earn enough to keep the bread of life in them, who carry their scrub pails home through deserted streets, exposed to cold and hunger. The tender-hearted ones can bear this with equanimity. It is the thought of women getting into comfortable and well-paid positions which wrings their manly hearts."

CHANCE FOR BRAINS.

"It has been said that suffrage would cause quarrels between husband and wife. If they were so inclined they would quarrel anyway and a political quarrel would give them a chance to use their brains. I believe a small family jar would do them good. It is to keep the white-winged angel of peace hovering over the home that married women are not allowed to vote in many places. Spinners and widows are counted worthy of voice in the selection of school trustees and mayor, but not so with the woman who has taken to herself a husband and still has him."

"Why should marriage disqualify a woman? Men have been known to vote for years after they were dead!"

CIRCUS PARADE IS CHILDREN'S JOY

Robinson's Big Street Review Witnessed by Throngs of Young Citizens.

The John Robinson Ten Big Shows arrived in Oakland early this morning over the Southern Pacific, coming from Richmond. The arrival of the first section was met with a tumultuous shout from hundreds of children's voices, the boys and girls following the established custom of their fathers and mothers, set generations ago, by getting up early to see the prancing horses, monstrous animals and glided wagons unloaded from the cars.

The young folks were not alone in their desire to witness the event of the first visit of the Robinson Circus in many years, and the great crowd was augmented by hundreds of men and women as eager as the young folks for the arrival of the train.

The machine-like methods used by the circus men soon had the great caravan on the way to the show grounds at Fortieth and San Pablo. As it moved away, it was followed by old and young, who desired, to be present to see the erection of the big tent and the smaller ones that shelter the performers and house the side shows.

The big parade left the show grounds on scheduled time. Bands played, calipso tooted, clowns shouted, lions roared, horses pranced and the great crowd that lined the curbs and filled office windows entered into the spirit of circus day.

Every one was satisfied for the parade was the heat that has been seen in Oakland for years.

As the glittering wagons and melodious bands moved back toward the show grounds, the great crowd followed and soon filled the "great tent" to capacity for the afternoon performance.

Another performance will be given tonight and tomorrow. The doors to the big show are opened at 1 and 7 o'clock, giving one hour in which to visit the Robinson menagerie. The downtown ticket office is at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s music store.

Another parade will be given tomorrow morning over the same line of march.

The Oregon, the "bulldog" of the navy, was turned over to a new commander today. On the quarter-deck of the old warship formal ceremonies were held, during which Captain Joseph M. Reeves, who has commanded the Oregon for more than a year, transferred the ship to Captain E. F. Williams. Captain Reeves will go to Mare Island navy yard as chief aide of the commander.

The Oregon is still attached to the United States navy, but is being used as a training ship for the California Naval Militia.

On March 6 the Oregon was turned over to the state militia, with Captain Reeves remaining in charge of the 300 regular enlisted men aboard, in accordance with the program established on the Atlantic coast, having 40 per cent of the crew comprising regular members and 60 per cent from the state militia.

The Oregon was made famous by her wonderful voyage around Cape Horn to Santiago, Cuba, in 1898, during the Spanish-American war, when she reached her destination after traveling 13,500 miles. The Oregon joined Sampson's fleet in time to participate in the destruction of the historic American war craft, went into action with the Spanish armored cruiser Infanta Maria Teresa, and during the course of the battle was struck three times, without serious injuries.

The vessel was built at the Union Iron Works in San Francisco in 1893 and given an armament of four 13-inch guns, eight 8-inch, twelve 2-inch, four 3-pounders, two 1-pounders and two machine guns. She had a complement of 550 men.

DANCE REVUE OF ST. DENIS CHARMS

Ramona, as Seen in Movies, Success
Film Version Depicts California Romance

Orpheum Number Clever, With Wide Variety to Program.

No one will deny that the Orpheum this season has given to Oakland the leading dance exponents of the country and few will deny that Ruth St. Denis, here this week, is the best of the number. Of the rest it may be said with some justice that there was a little too much of spectacular dancing, too evident search for oddity, and not enough real dancing. The St. Denis act has a little of all but is surely not lacking in the measures that have given her a recognized place in the field.

With Miss St. Denis is Ted Shawn and a company of dancers who fill in between the acts of the dance revue of considerable interest. In her color dance and Egyptian number Miss St. Denis is the same St. Denis we have known before. Faith to theme and a seeming desire to interpret the somewhat bizarre spirit her offerings, with her unquestioned skill, make of the act one of the high ones.

"The Spirit of the Sea" is entirely different, an exemplification of variety and the collection. Old-time James B. Donovan, whose face and his figure are his vaudeville fortune, is back. This time Miss Marie Lee, a little woman with an infectious laugh and almost a baritone voice in the necessary partner. Tim has not robbed Donovan of his ability to get the laughs. That there are few stories the public would rather have visualized on the screen, that Helen Hunt Jackson's Ramona is evidenced in the popularity of the spectacular film being shown at the Macdonough. Of added interest to Californians, the scene of the story of the book and the setting of the actual pictures, there is also the interest that accompanies any well staged and generously conceived motion picture.

Detail of costuming, wealth of setting and marked evidence that no expense or exertion has been spared to make the film one to be ranked with the best of the year. The story of Ramona as told in the novel is strictly followed in the photographs. The romance and the tragedy of the little Spanish beauty's life with her husband, Alessandro, is depicted with the real scenes and sides of the story photographed for the eye. The costumes are said to be the result of months of careful study that they be without error and may be accepted, without reservation, as such.

The film is a bit of the most pretentious shown here in months. So long have we been seeing that it is run through but twice a day. An augmented orchestra with a well arranged three large transformations of the story, it has been said, nothing of the magnitude has been accomplished in American films.

Ramona is a film all who have read the book and is stimulating to read it many who had not. It will be a pleasure to see it. One wonders the success it made at Los Angeles and San Francisco, where many were turned away.

SWEET MUSIC'S PANTAGES LEADER

Appreciative Audience Sees and Hears Big Bill at Playhouse.

It may be that the unusual opportunity that Oakland has had this year toward the popularization of good music is reflected in the reception given this week at the Playhouse where Paul Perera and his string sextet are being given an ovation. Certain it is that this organization, with none of the evident stage tricks—unless it be the red coats they wear—were meeting heavily with success. A pair of artists in a program more than once. The six have been together so long that unity and assurance is an apparent asset and so long as they stay together in this country will they be additions to a reputation which may become, here, of the proportions it already has. The sextet is a bit of a novelty, left last evening with the memory of soft strains of beautiful music, well played.

When Alice Lloyd first came to America from England it was at the time the theater-going public was humming "Arg There Awa Moss A Home Awa You." Then came Marie Lloyd who didn't make the hit that Alice did, and now the third, Rosie, is making her bid. Rosie has not less than a bit of story to tell or like an American and therein lies her charm. She sings, dresses, and acts, like the other two, "just a little bit."

A woman who acts seven roles in a sketch and starts with her quick-change work and character work in a sketch in addition to the interest that always goes with a lightning-change number.

When Harry Tsuda performs incredible balancing feats which he set down as tricks of the Orient may be disappointed to learn that while he is a Japanese he speaks no word of the language and that he learned all of his tricks in the gymnasium of a Los Angeles high school. He opens the bill to generous applause. Knight and Moore have a comedy act of the polite kind. The comedy act of the polite kind. The comedy act of the polite kind.

7,500,000 LOSS TO GRAPE CROPS

Latest Killing Frost In State's History Plays Havoc With Vineyards.

SACRAMENTO, May 8.—Abnormal weather conditions of a freak year brought the latest killing frost on record in this part of the state yesterday morning and with it damage to grapes and vegetables which may total close to $2,500,000.

The figures are based on estimates of fruit and produce shipping companies collected from observers in the field. Some vines, mostly Tokays in the American

While grapes in Napa Valley are declared to have suffered a half million dollars' damage. A 50 per cent damage potatoes in the Delta region of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, and the killing of such tender plants as to-

LATEST KILLING FROST.
Weather records have been kept in Sacramento for 40 years, but this frost is the latest by eleven days every recorded. In Santa Clara County some spots were damaged, although there and in most of the Sacramento region, the frost was light.
For the most part fruit escaped, but

The loss is borne chiefly by small growers, the California Wine Association saving little acreage in the districts affected and the Italian Swiss Colony's er bottom properties escaping. In the north of bay region, up in Mendocino county, the higher land was less badly damaged.

NAPA AND SONOMA HARD HIT.

The average loss in Napa and Sonoma counties is rather more than 60 per cent, it is said.

The frost was preceded ten days ago in Napa county by another which did a little as much damage.

The loss on the grape crop in this county is high, according to estimates, the losses in individual vineyards ranging from 70 to 100 per cent, except in some northern or western exposure and the higher foothills. Acres of grapes in every district were turned black. A few late Zinfandels may be saved.

The potato crop, within two weeks of digging time, is said to be ruined. The only possible salvage being for horse feed, the ranchers declare. The damage to hops was confined chiefly to those that had made a good start, but is expected to be heavy.

Percy Nutt, 950 Alameda avenue, Berkeley, reported linen stolen from an untenanted apartment house at 825 Twelfth street, Oakland. Cash and checks amounting to $60 were taken from a safe in the apartment. It was entered by a burglar who last night entered the home of Fred F. T. Watson.

Madison May "Fall" Into Hands of "Enemy"

MADISON, Wis., May 8.—A battle in which University of Wisconsin cadets are defending the city of Madison from an attacking force is the main feature of the annual inspection of the university military corps by Major Monroe McFarland of the general staff of the United States army today.

The attacking force is advancing from Eagle Heights, a point three and a half miles from the university. The invaders awaited reinforcements at Eagle Heights, then advanced on the university boys' camp in a marsh two miles from the enemy.

The enemy was halted by machine-gun fire. The commanding officer sent a flanking column around the Madison forces and caused them to retire.

The problem of the Madison boys was to work out their retreat from

Pacific Surf Boom to "Swish" in N. Y.

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y., May 8.—Leading American bankers, their wives and friends from many parts of the country, are here for the spring meeting of the American Bankers' Association executive council.

During the two-day session the bankers will be entertained at dinner by President Frank A. Vanderlip of the New York National City Bank.

A report entitled "The Pacific Coast Banking Situation," showing the effect of the banker's national thrift campaign on young America, will be shown and a dinner will be served, during which movies of the Pacific coast will be shown on the four walls, while the diners listen by long distance phone to the boom of the surf in California. Each guest will have an individual phone.

The march to a position in front of the university buildings. The narrowness of the attack was the problem of the enemy.

Modern Household, Vaughn Theme Will Delve Into Cost of Living

MRS. KATE D. VAUGHN, WHO BEGAN TODAY TRIBUNE'S COURSE IN HOME ECONOMICS.

Cookery Expert Has List of Questions for Housewives to Think Over

IMPORTANT FACTS CONCERNING THE TRIBUNE'S FREE HOME ECONOMICS SCHOOL.

Time—All this week.
Place—Auditorium Opera House.
No tickets required—admission free to all—nothing offered for sale.
Doors open at 1:30. Musical concert 2. Lecture demonstration 2:30.

Mrs. Vaughn suggests the housekeepers think over the following questions and see if their views accord with hers as given in her lecture tomorrow afternoon:

1. What do I know of the Home Economics movement?
2. What is meant by house-keeper and home-maker?
3. What do we know about the relation of expenditure of our income and efficiency and culture?
4. What must I know of food, textiles, shelter and incidentals that consume my income?
5. What must I know of food, clothing, cleanliness and recreation, in order to keep my family well, strong and happy?
6. Can housekeeping be a successful business venture?

This afternoon at the opening session of The TRIBUNE second annual Better Foods, Better Homes School in the auditorium opera house, Mrs. Vaughn is giving a most instructive and interesting talk on "The Modern Household." One of the most delightful characteristics of Mrs. Vaughn's work is that she speaks from a common-sense point of view and does not bring to the woman who is interested in keeping down expenses ideas that will nearly discourage her and add to her living bills. Tomorrow afternoon she is going to give an illuminating and unusual talk on a hackneyed theme, "The Cost of Living." But Mrs. Vaughn deals with this in a way that is different and cannot fail to interest every woman in her class whether she is the one who is striving to make a small income cover a multitude of needs, or who has plenty of money and is interested in administering her affairs in an economical and business-like way.

Home economics is occupying the attention of women more and more. For it has not only been found to be conducive to better foods in the home, but to bettering the home in every particular. Culture, Mrs. Vaughn teaches, is the broadening of all lines of knowledge and includes home economics just as well as the study of any other art, that is, if it is studied from the standpoint of efficiency.

One of the branches of the culinary art in which Mrs. Vaughn excels is that of cake decorating and cake beautifully decorated with various blossoms made from her magic icing will be given away every afternoon. Mrs. Vaughn has a new cookery leaflet to present to the ladies attending her classes. The school continues throughout the week and every housewife in Oakland is invited to attend.

Spiritualists Hear Talk by Noted Lecturer

Claude Piers, well-known lecturer on spiritualistic subjects, was the speaker last night before the First Spiritual church of Oakland, his topic being "The Power of Suggestion."

Mind, he declared, rules every cell of the body and has perfect connection with the thought centers. Every sense is radiated, he showed, by mental condition and the consciousness of every condition. Thus, he said, some minds radiate disappointment, others happiness, others grief.

"Success and happiness," he said, "are not given to us as a reward, but to show us that suggestion will develop within us the true and the beautiful. Let us not therefore work for ourselves alone. We should all have a central purpose when it comes to suggestions for uplift. To those we come in contact with we should suggest, mentally, the power for good."

Coroner Will Probe Death of Bay Suicide

Investigation of the death of Mrs. Charles A. Wheatley, who committed suicide Saturday by leaping into the bay waters from the deck of the ferry steamer Alameda, will be held by a coroner's jury Wednesday evening. Mrs. Wheatley lived at 223 Mission street, San Francisco, and had been ill for several months. Her husband, who yesterday claimed the body and removed it to San Francisco, was planning to have her sent to a sanatorium for treatment.

CALOMEL BAD FOR THE LIVER

Dose of Nasty Calomel Makes You Sick and You Lose a Day's Work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headache, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tonic, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you out better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; but if you take Dodson's Liver Tonic you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it. Advertisement.

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH ON STREET

Succeeds in Taking Life After Frantic Struggle in Mid-air.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—Leaping from the small iron grating, after a desperate fight with a hospital nurse on a fire escape, three stories in the air, Miss Pauline Cushing, of Boston, insane, dropped to her death yesterday from the third story of the Hahnemann Hospital.

For five minutes she struggled on the platform with Miss Gertrude Donnellan, who narrowly escaped being dashed to the pavement with her charge.

Miss Cushing, who was sent to the hospital last Friday, was silent as to her antecedents and efforts are now being made to locate and communicate with members of her family. She was brought to the hospital through the efforts of the Traveler's Aid and Mrs. F. Q. Sanborn, president of the Women's Board of the Exposition. She was supposed to be suffering from extreme melancholia, but at the time, according to the hospital attendants, had no trace of suicidal mania.

Miss Donnellan, who was assigned to the case, kept the sick woman under surveillance, and, according to her story, had begun to note an improvement when the sensational suicide occurred. While she was arranging the patient's pillows, she declares, the telephone bell rang.

"If it's about me," remarked Miss Cushing, "tell them I am much better and quite comfortable." The nurse went to the telephone, turning her back to the patient. Miss Cushing hastily ran to the bathroom adjoining her room, raised the window, and was climbing onto the fire escape when the nurse dropped the telephone and ran to her. On Miss Cushing's refusal to come back into the room the nurse leaped through the window just as the patient was climbing over the guard rail. They clung, and struggled in and fro on the narrow platform of grated iron.

After about five minutes of struggle, Miss Cushing, who was the more powerful of the two, succeeded in making her way over the rail and plunged to the sidewalk below. Only a desperate grip on the bars saved the nurse from a similar fate.

Death was instant, according to physicians. The woman's body was badly crushed in the long fall.

According to Mrs. Sanborn, who had the woman sent to the hospital, her aid was enlisted in the case by a friend, who had known that the patient was supposed to be on the verge of departure. She declares that Miss Cushing was a woman of refinement and apparent distinction.

BELGIAN MARKET TO NET $2700

Affair Is Success Despite Rain; Many Booths Sell Out.

Oakland's Belgian Relief Market will net between $2000 and $2700 for the Belgian relief fund, according to reports of auditing committees, made this morning. Actual figures will not be available until tomorrow, as all bills have not yet been returned.

"Considering the rain," said Mrs. L. R. Webster, who directed the business affairs of the market, "this is a remarkable showing. The rain put us to a big extra expense in preparing covers for booths, and also reduced the profits by causing girls in the booths to sell under price to avoid a danger of having goods left on hand."

"The result was that in the afternoon, when the sun came out, there were not enough goods left to meet popular demand. We could have sold much more at better prices."

Mrs. Willard Williamson, who had general charge of the business arrangements and the conduct of the market, also expressed herself as pleased with the results of the market of Saturday. The total receipts, she declares, were in the neighborhood of $3000, and the expenditures will be in the neighborhood of $300.

"Most of the booths were cleared out by 3 o'clock," she said. "We could have sold much more after the good weather came."

The banner booth of the market was that of Mrs. Edson Adams, which netted $300, selling potted flowers and plants. The second was that of Mrs. William Angus of Hayward, in which fresh fruits and farm products were sold.

"The money will be sent to New York, as soon as all bills are paid, to the national Belgian relief headquarters, whence the funds will be turned over to Herbert Hoover, in charge of the work in Belgium, and his assistants."

An Encore!

Some stories will bear repeating. Now, there's the story of the Million Dollar OWL.

Behind the OWL cigar stands a million dollars' worth of slowly-curing leaf. This supply, selected when market conditions are favorable, makes sure that the cigar-maker gets the same grade of tobacco for every OWL.

You know that, "green" leaf has little or no flavor. To make the leaf mellow, it must be thoroughly cured.

Curing requires an average of 18 months. During this 18 months, this non-productive supply of tobacco, always a million dollars in value and frequently more, lies idle in the OWL factories so that you can be sure of getting the same mild smoke in every OWL you buy.

A million dollars of good smoke insurance! Did any other cigar manufacturer ever take so much trouble and so much expense in guaranteeing satisfaction to his customers?

That is why the OWL never disappoints the men who smoke it.
